

Employee Communities

Make Better Decisions with Web 2.0 Collaborative Software

The voice of your employee is more important than ever. With Web 2.0 technology, employees are connecting, sharing, educating, and influencing each other in ways that organizations have never before experienced. Listen and join their conversation and the community will provide you the insight to drive your projects forward. Quickly and easily create online communities of purpose so that employees can meet, build relationships, share ideas, create content, and learn from one another.

With an Employee Community you will: The Employee Community Advantage

- Improve communication and strengthen relationships
- Easily collaborate
- Build consensus
- Share, rank, categorize, and evaluate community knowledge
- Foster loyalty
- Increase word-of-mouth marketing
- Capture, measure, and analyze feedback
- Cut training costs
- Differentiate your brand
- Build a better reputation

Facebook and Twitter have changed the way people communicate. An Employee Community brings that change to businesses around the world.

We focus on helping companies improve business performance by providing a software platform that not only connects your employees to each other, but also connects them to critical information, knowledge, and expertise.

We believe social networks can make smart companies smarter.

We're passionate about helping companies unlock the power of online communities. We've helped organizations like yours discover new communication paths, ideas, and knowledge—knowledge they already have inside of their talented employees. Our entire team works together closely, 100% focused on helping you bring your people together. We want to help you connect your experts, leverage the knowledge that you already have within your organization, and spark communication throughout your company.

We want to help foster connections.

Our goal is to eliminate communication barriers so that everyone in your company can be as knowledgeable as your best employee. We go beyond content and knowledge sharing—we want to help foster connections and build relationships that make your organization thrive.

We connect people through technology.

Since 1993 we've focused on solving real business problems for real business people. We believed then—and still do today—that the best thing software can do is to help people become smarter, more effective, and more efficient by connecting them together.

For more information contact Joe Rotella at 614-754-4326 or jrotella@delphiaconsulting.com